

Draw a Penguin Step by Step

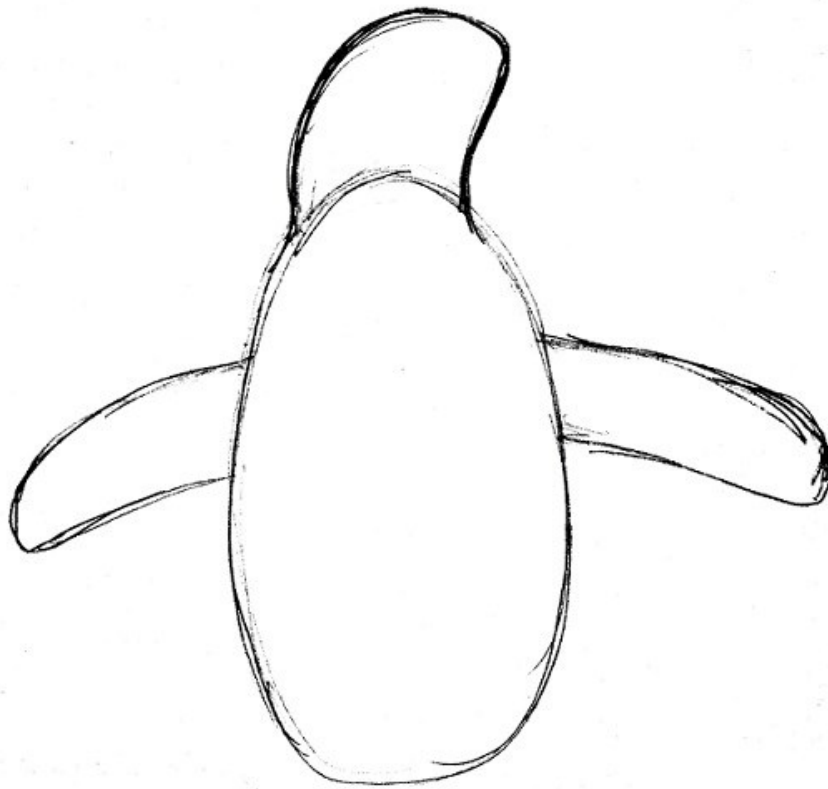

1. Look at the shape of the penguin. What shape(s) do you see?
Notice that its body is oval-shaped. Draw an oval for the body.

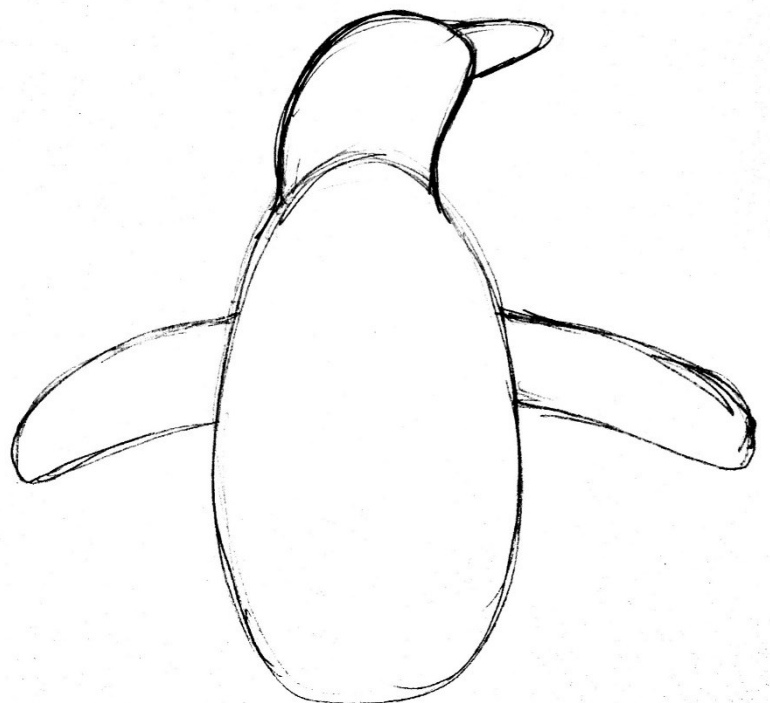

2. Next, look at the shape of his head. It's almost an oval, too. Draw it on top of the large oval.

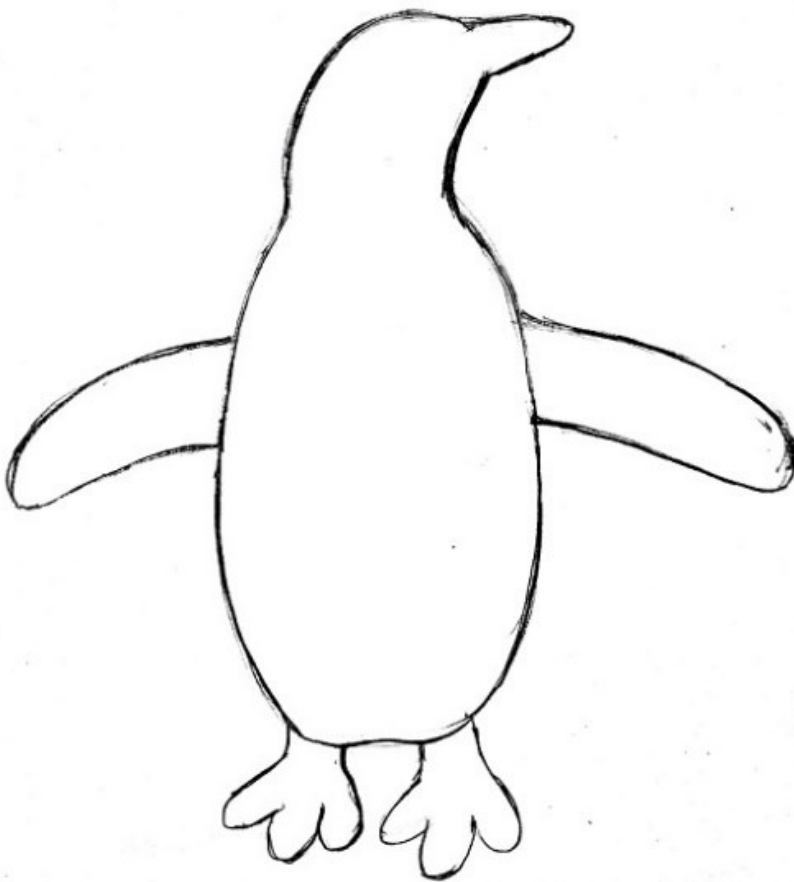

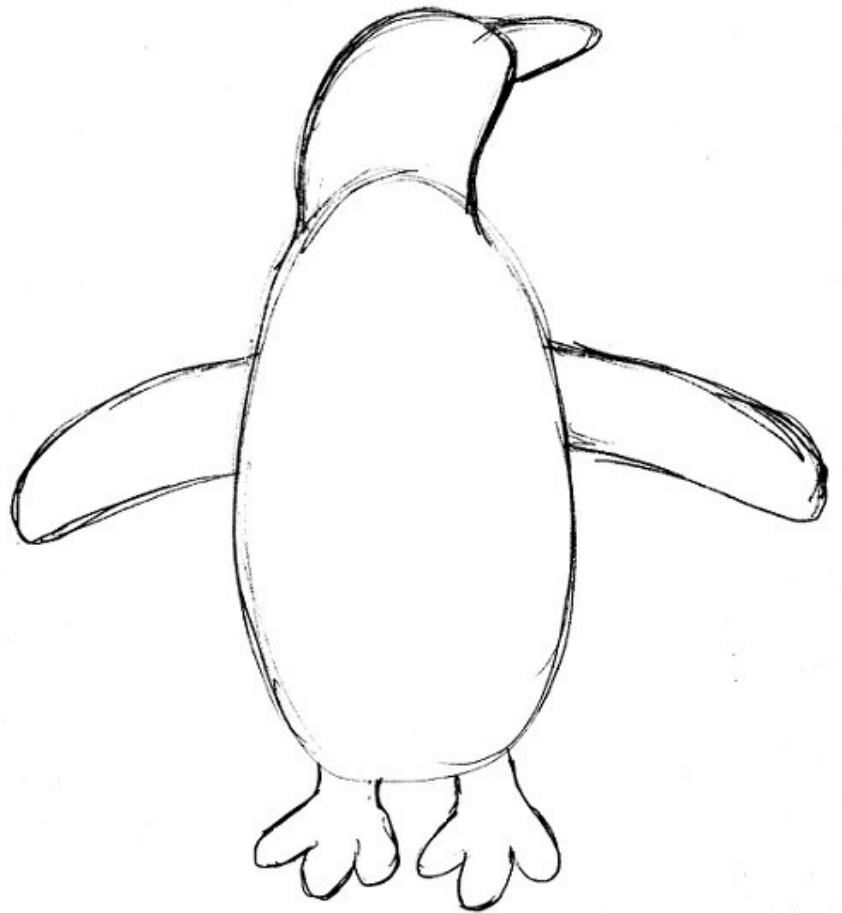

3. Now look at his flippers. They are long, thinner ovals. Pay close attention to where they attach to the body. Notice they come out from the body close to the middle.

4. Time to add the beak! Notice where it attaches to the head. Notice the end of the beak isn't pointed, but rather more rounded.

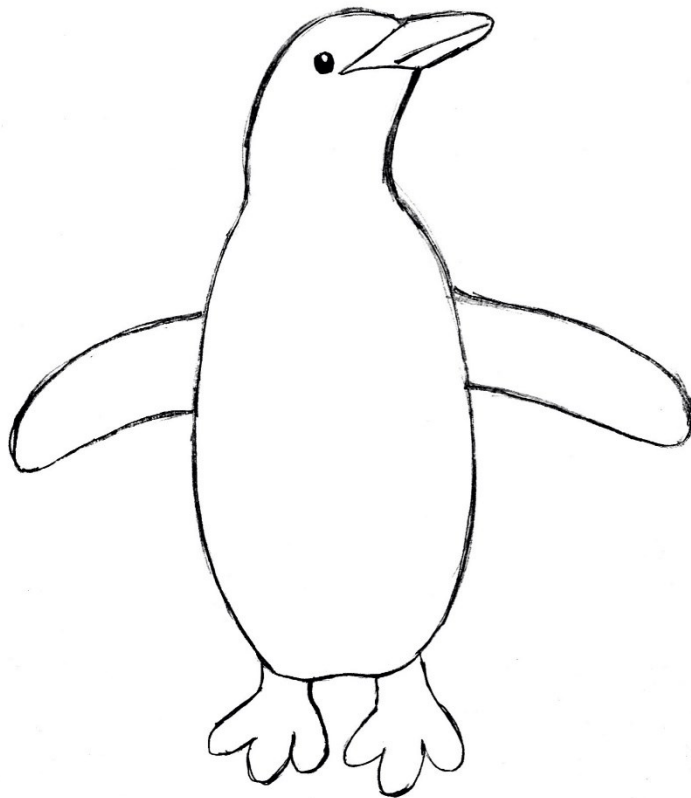

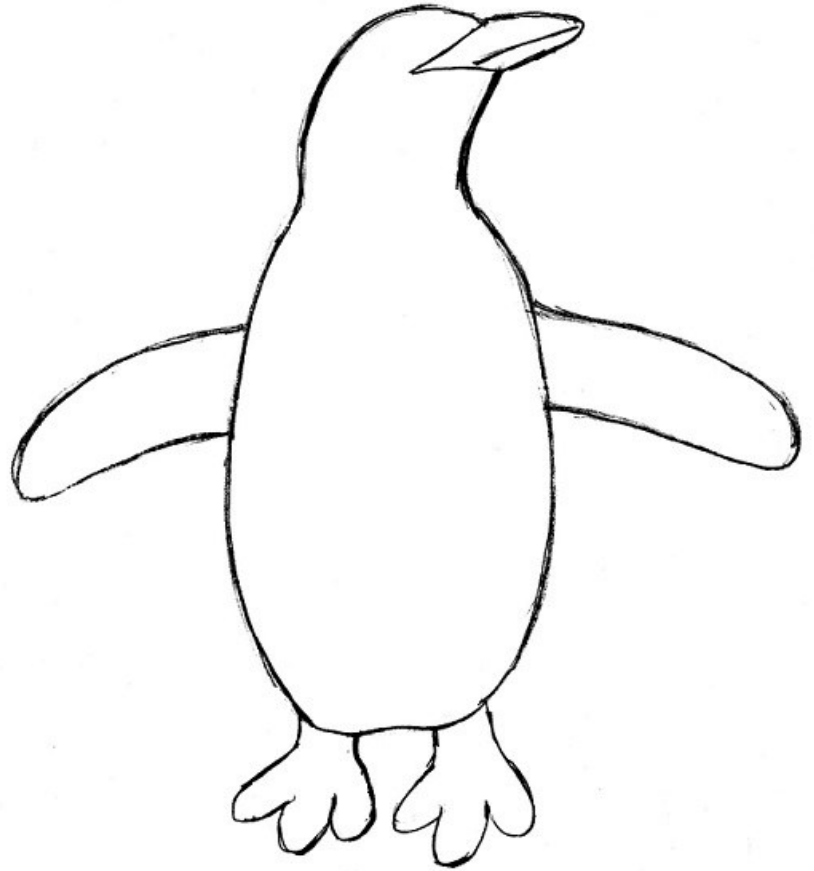

5. Look at the penguin's feet! These aren't skinny little legs; they are actually quite wide. Draw three large, rounded toes on the legs.

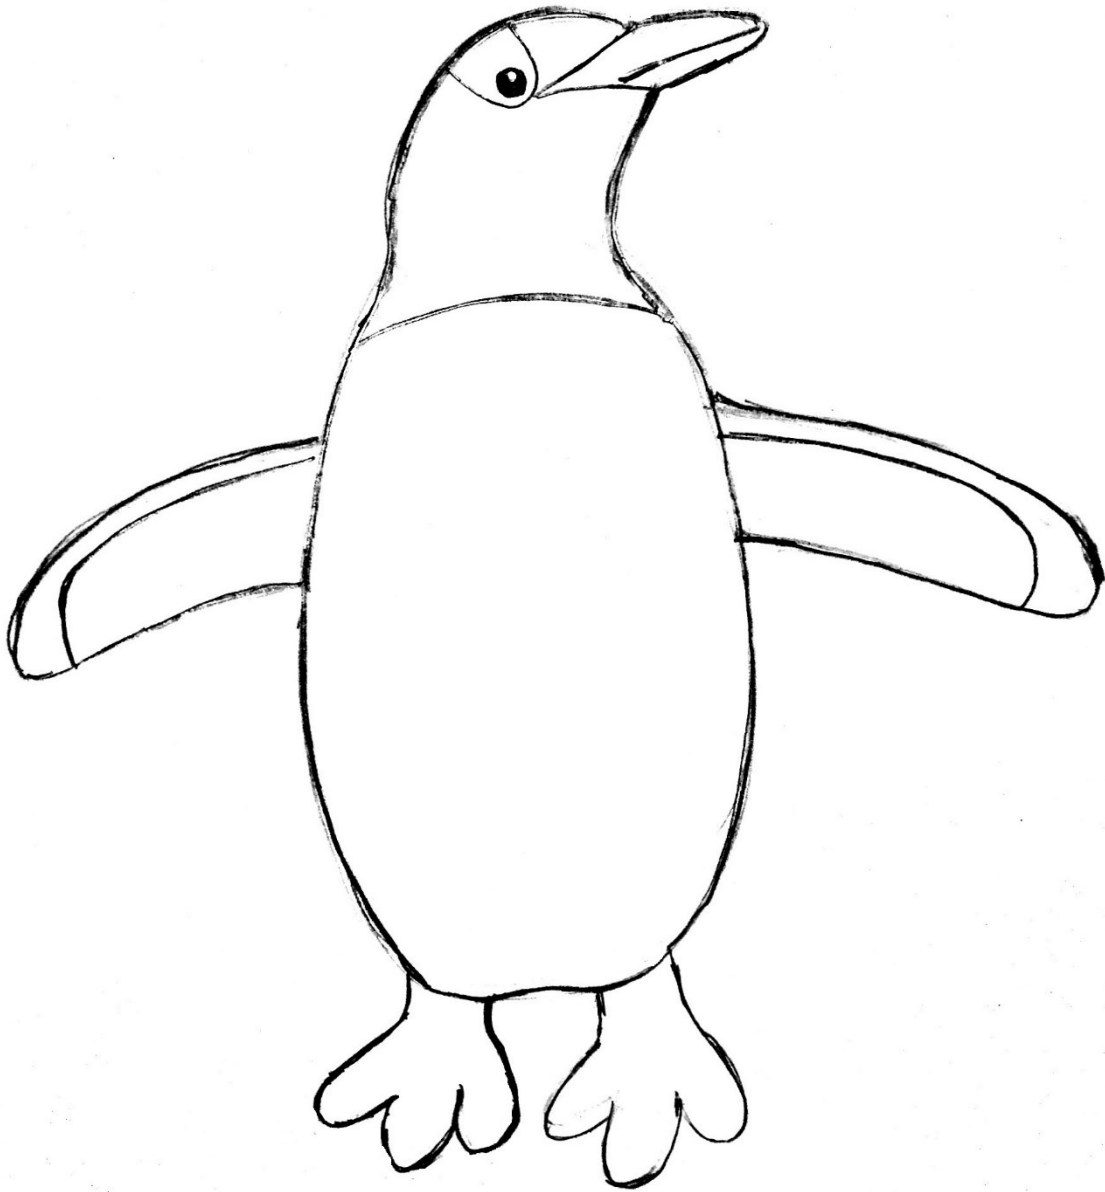

6. Now you've got the whole penguin sketched on there. Next, use an eraser to erase the extra lines at his beak and neck.

7. Draw a straight line on the beak for the mouth.

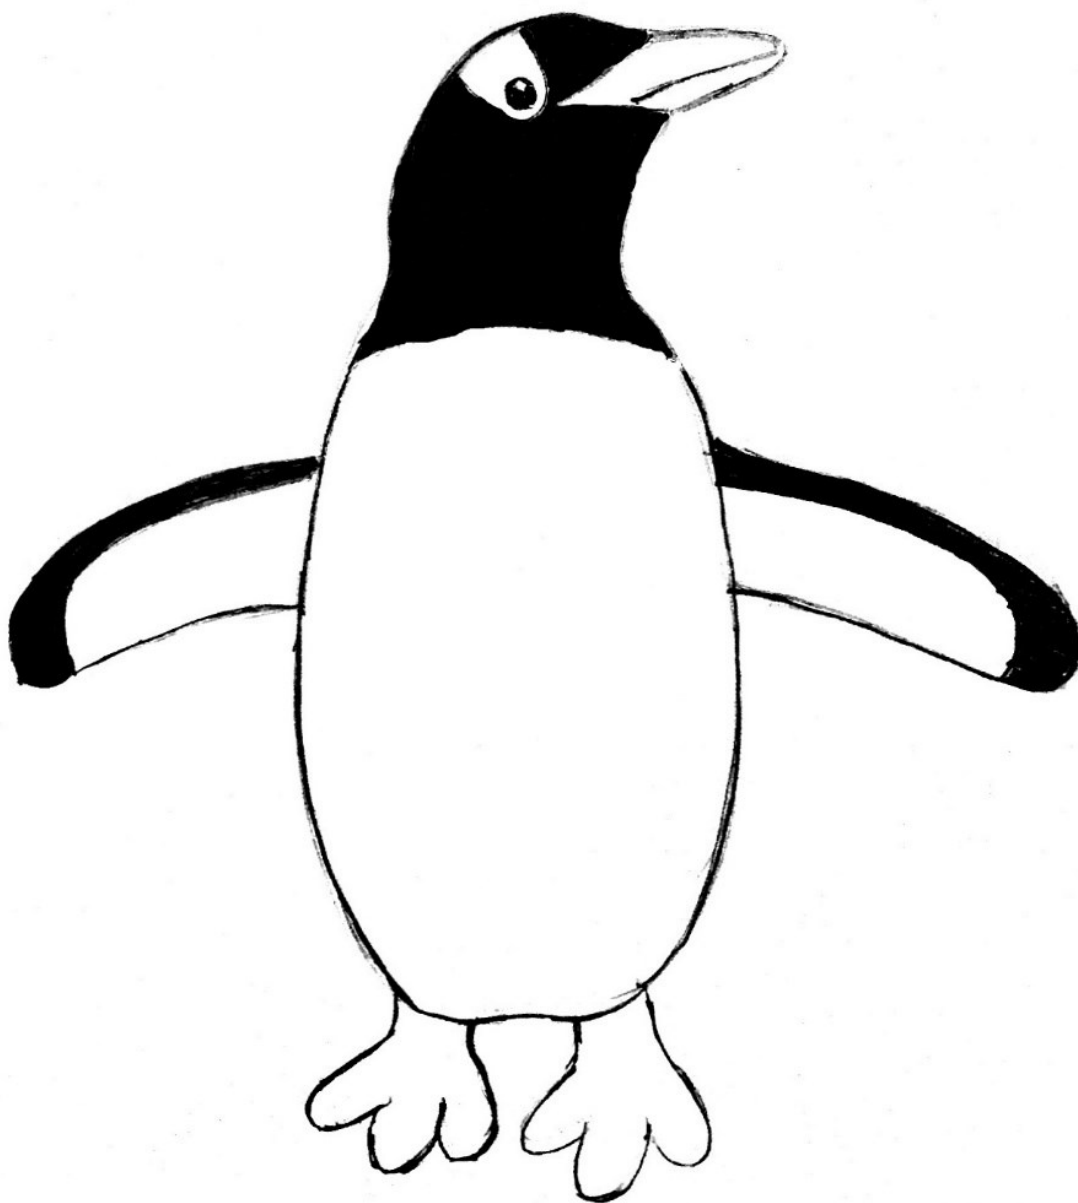

8. Now for the eye. Notice how close the eye is to the beak. Color the eye dark with your pencil. Be sure to leave a white spot in the eye. This is called the catchlight; it's the reflection of light in an open eye.

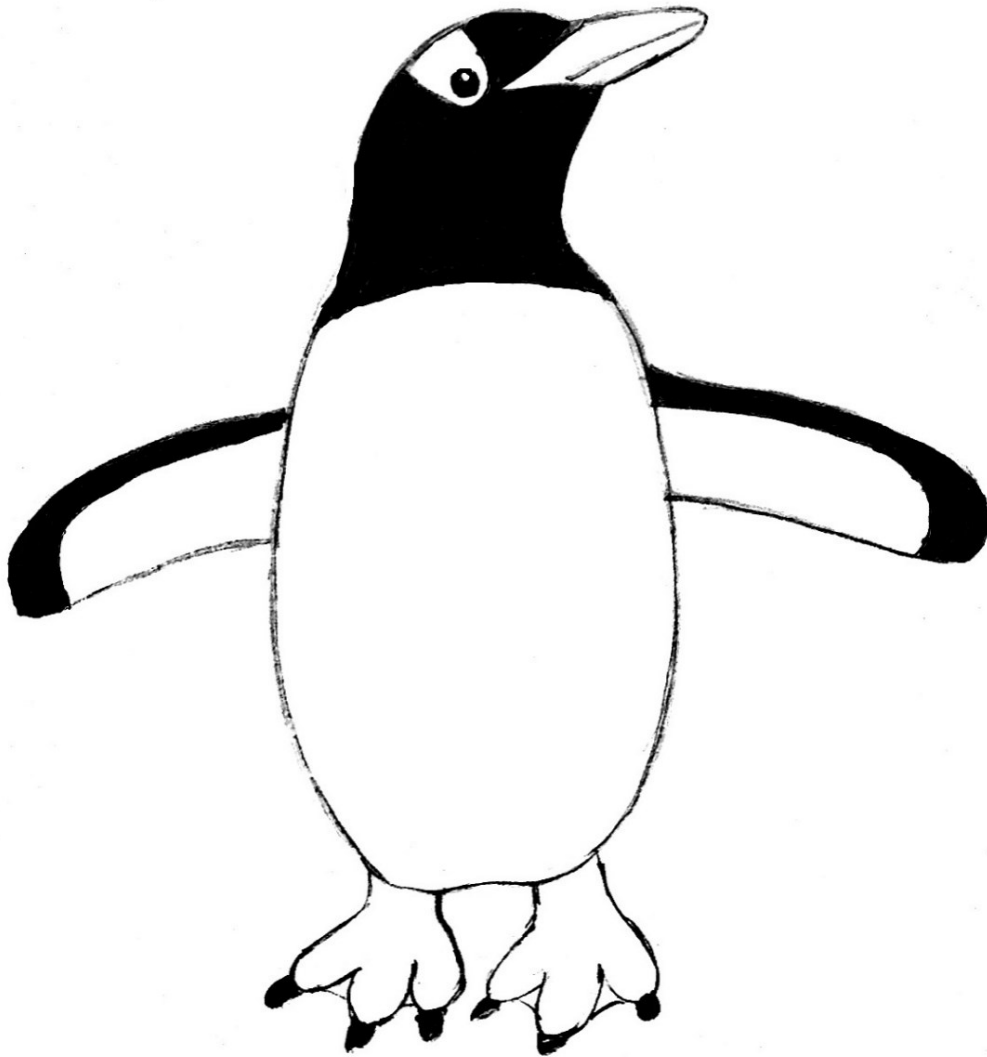

9. You're almost done! Next, add in the lines showing where the penguin is white and black.

10. Color in the black portions of the penguin. You can color very darkly with a pencil or fill it in with a pen.

11. Only one more thing to do! Add claws and webbing to the penguin's feet.

That's it! Congratulations on finishing a penguin drawing!
